If home is where the heart is, Actor Jimmy Stewart, 75, was in the right place last week when his boyhood town of Indiana, Pa. (pop. 16,000), threw a three-day birthday party in his honor. To celebrate the return of its leading man, Indiana poured on the Americana, with parades, air shows, harness races and ribbon cuttings. The high point of the festivities came when city elders unveiled a 9-ft. statue of its favorite son. Drawled the still gangly, 6-ft. 2½-in. Stewart: "This is sort of where I made up my mind about things, about hard work and the value of it, about family, about community and the place of the church in a fellow's life." And perhaps also about the renewing usefulness of returning to one's roots.

School life sparkles with variety.

Students wearing sunglasses, sandals, and madras, poured into the high school with much less confusion than in the previous year, for all but the sophomores knew their way around the new building. All construction was finished, except for the widening of the road to dispense with traffic problems, all courses were organized, and the planting of grass and shrubbery added new beauty to the school.

The 1964-65 year opened with a bang or, should we say, without a bang, for the bomb was just a scare and not reality. But the administration and the students could handle an emergency.

On the lighter side, the first pep assembly was held to start the football season and in general to increase effort toward a livelier school spirit during our year.

The school itself smelled of floor wax and soap and looked neat and efficient as classes settled into routine. The students quickly caught on to new schedules and began to dig into their new books. Book covers, pencils, and tablets were given out and, with all the work, quickly showed signs of wear. Hall and gym lockers were assigned and in a short time the combinations were memorized. And so the new year began.

For the first time

Homecoming activities began on November 6 at an assembly in the gymnasium. Finalists for queen—Donna Dickie, Mitty George, Cindy Heaton, Jane Lemmon, Penny Nichol, Judy Orendorff, and Dotty Yanish presented speeches about themselves. Following the voting, a pep assembly and dedication of Key Club's hand-carved totem pole took place in the parking lot. Mr. Farabaugh and Mark Caldwell spoke on school spirit and announced the football team's last home game.

Friday was the first dress-up day of the school year. During Pep Club's Senior Salute, the mother of each senior football player was presented a corsage. Cindy Heaton was crowned at half time by Mr. McGee. The band presented a show honoring Mr. Pollock and the senior band members, followed by the football team's defeat of Cambria Heights.

Junior girls, led by Mr. Selkirk were champs of Pep Club's powder puff football game Saturday afternoon. They trounced their opponents with the support of Denny Moore, Jim Mattie, and Rich Engel, cheerleaders. A Student Council dance concluded the festivities.

since 1961, we celebrate gala Homecoming.

Teahouse of the August Moon, a humorous satire adapted by John Patrick from the Pulitzer Prize winning novel by Vern Sneider, was presented in the Indiana Senior High School Auditorium on November 13 and 14 at 8:15. On November 12 the students saw the play in two assembly groups in order to promote better attendance at the remaining three plays of the year. Under the direction of Mr. Nix, the twenty-nine cast members successfully learned their lines and how to sing "She'll Be Comin' 'Round the Mountain" in Japanese.

The three acts were divided into ten scenes, and divided again as the stage was set in three sections. Each section could be lighted separately, and when not in use, was covered by a screen. The simple, yet impressive set, designed by Mr. Frank Shaffer, made changes in scenery easy for the production crews. One of the screens used on the stage read, "Private Forest Fires." The jeep, goat, and the screen's getting caught during the building of the teahouse were all problems for the stage crew, but Japanese costumes, some borrowed from friends and others made by the Home Economics Department, added color and mood.

ADMINISTRATION

... scheduling courses; making out programs . . . purchasing textbooks, composition paper, paste, rulers, paper clips, chalk and dictionaries . . . establishing a calendar and scheduling plays, concerts, assemblies and commencement . . . seeing that drinking fountains work; keeping radiators (and students) quiet . . . taking attendance and cafeteria count every morning; looking after homeroom and clubs . . . chaperoning dances; selling and collecting tickets at sports events . . . keeping room temperature comfortable and chewing gum off the floor . . . These add up to headaches for 111 people to make 180 days meaningful for 1,000 others.

Paul R. Getts . . . Pennsylvania State University, B.S., M.Ed., D.Ed. . . . Superintendent of Schools

The Administration of Indiana Senior High School was efficient and ever ready this past year. Mr. Getts, the Superintendent of schools, carried our problems to the Joint School Board and they in turn took the proper action. With a firm hand and an open mind our principal, Mr. McGee, met each school problem as it arose. Mr. Elicker served as curriculum co-ordinator and his advanced planning enabled all classes to run smoothly. As director of activities, Mrs. Recupero was responsible for the scheduling of all school events. Serving in a position closest to the students were the Guidance Counselors. Planning schedules, giving standardized tests, and helping the Seniors choose a college were only three of the many tasks performed by Miss Moorhead and Mr. Kunselman.

Administration,

Sayers, Wilber Bell, Robert P. Cunningham, Raymond Patterson, J. Clyde Johns, Charles Chatfield, William L. Ingersoll, Floyd C. Rankin, Paul R. Getts, J. Reppell Moorhead, Lisle H. Brady, and Jesse A. Lubold. The following school board members were not present when the picture was taken: Ruth Kimmel, Sara B. Johnson, Raymond D. McNaughton, John T. Edelman, and Glen Faith.

Behind-the-scenes groups call the plays.

The School Board of Indiana Joint Senior High School performs a year-round job of great importance. This elected nineteen-member group has thousands of decisions to make during the course of the year, and they must be accurate in accounting for the taxpayers' money. Hiring new teachers, approving the school calendar, establishing the budget, and setting the tax millage—these are only a few of the responsibilities of this dedicated group of citizens.

The maintenance crew works around the clock to keep the building clean and spotless. The students have seen Harry Barclay, Ray Frye, and Jesse Miller mopping floors and cleaning windows during school hours. Doing similar jobs at night are: Marybelle Bash, Ray Belle, Leona Mae Davis, Elizabeth Eckenroad, Anthony Grego, Bernard Galonis, Patricia J. Hatter, Melvin L. Johnston, and Ralph Thompson. Robert Collins is the head engineer while Frank McAfoose is the head manager.

Mr. Jacoby, a member of the maintenance crew, completes the mowing of the football field.

CURRICULUM

... digging frantically through the card catalogue as time runs out on term and research papers; giving a speech and remembering all of it ... being able to talk along with the record in language lab; working until midnight on homework only to leave it at home ... the joy of getting all homework done in last period study hall and suddenly finding time to go to Teen-Age after all ... the pride of being able to talk to an adult intelligently on a subject considered out of a teen-ager's world; the satisfaction of transforming thoughts and feelings into a poem ... As a whole it has been a demanding year, but undoubtedly a rewarding one for those who wanted to get the most out of it.

Social studies students invade the library.

Commander James Lawrence of the Chesapeake said, "Don't Give up the ship!" back in 1813 but history students were daily reminded of this saying as they struggled through their classes and did research work. Armed with note cards, books, pencils, and paper, they headed toward the library with one purpose in mind—to work on their history projects. The sophomores had special reports or charts to complete while the juniors had term papers due every nine weeks. Some of the more industrious students volunteered for special reports. The seniors exerted mental effort on weekly periodicals, semester term papers, panel discussions, and special talks about their investigations.

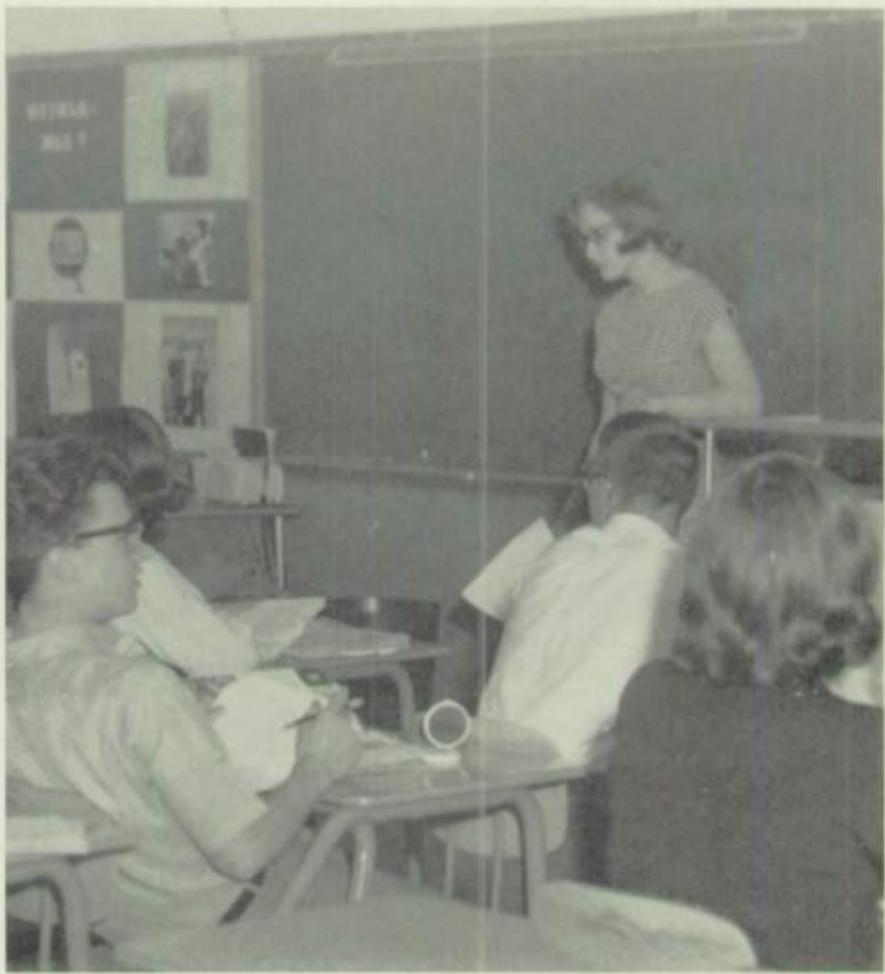

The Social Studies Department initiated several changes in curriculum. This year as a transition, sophomores, who in the past have studied World History, tackled United States History with the juniors. Seniors continued to study government, economics, and Communism. World Geography, Pennsylvania Government, and United States History and World Affairs helped students to gain knowledge in special fields of interest. Pennsylvania Government students observed a murder trial at the courthouse. The World Affairs course included American history from the Spanish American War to the crisis in Santo Domingo.

Opposite, left: A familiar procedure in doing term papers is searching the card catalogue, taking notes on cards, writing the rough draft, and typing the paper.

Upper left: Mr. Van Dyke's twelfth grade history class does a series of panel discussions on the pros and cons of capitalism, communism, fascism, and socialism.

Upper right: Miss McChesney, Mr. Van Dyke's student teacher, teaches her sixth period American History class about the events prior to the Civil War.

Lower right: Mr. Malacarne's fourth period class listens to him, though not with enthusiasm, reading a paragraph.

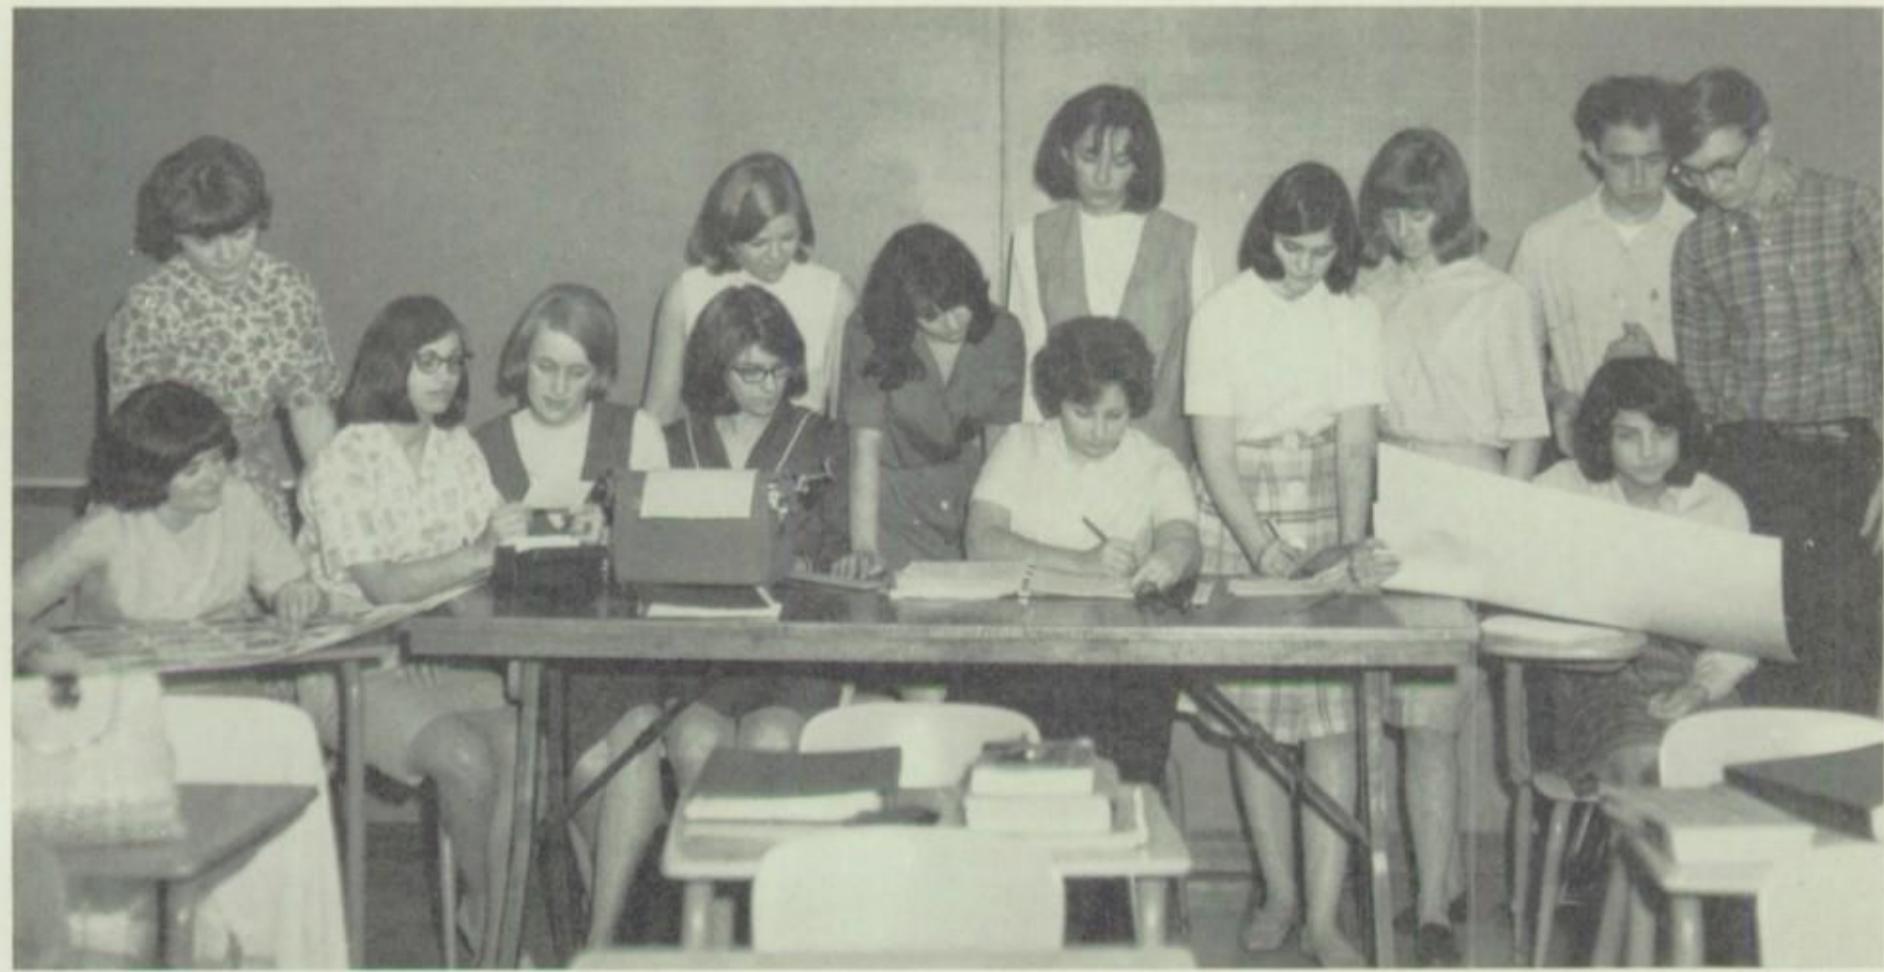

Themes, book reports, essays, poems, and short stories kept English students occupied, searching the card catalogue and magazine rack of the library for reference material. Senior English classes read Macbeth and listened to Othello in class while reading a comedy and another tragedy of Shakespeare in spare moments. The study of English history and the works of Great Britain's writers from the Anglo-Saxon period through the twentieth century provided ideas for term papers that dealt with some phase of English literature. Juniors explored American literature while doing term papers on their favorite American authors. Sophomores practiced writing poetry, short stories, and essays and studied speech improvement.

Elective courses helped many students develop their special skills and interests. Advanced Speech and Oral Interpretation furthered students' talents in delivering speeches and in understanding poetry and prose. The Journalism classes offered two year courses, the first year dealing with fundamentals of writing and editing. In the second year, students took over the actual production of the yearbook and newspapers. The juniors on the yearbook staff produced two magazines of collected student work. In Dramatics I and II Mr. Nix's classes delved into the history of the theatre, read modern plays, built miniature sets, and learned techniques.

Below: Nancy Malcolm and Mrs. Blair tie a stack of term papers together so that Mrs. Blair can take them home to correct.

Above: Fourteen seniors on the yearbook staff work on the production of the 1964-65 L'Indien. This process involves campaigning for money from patrons and subscribers as well as doing layouts, taking and cropping pictures, writing and proofreading copy, choosing a cover, and finally sending the book to the engraver and printer for production.

English classes explore various fields.

Right: The seniors on the newspaper staff publish twelve issues of the High Arrow and train their junior assistants as editors for the following year.

The language lab echoes unfamiliar phrases.

"Don't forget lab tomorrow!" This is familiar phrase to Spanish, French, and German students who use the language laboratory twice a week to practice pronunciation and comprehension. Latin students don't use the lab since Latin isn't a spoken language today. The first year of these languages deals with speaking, reading, writing, and grammar while the second year develops these talents more fully. In the second year, besides learning the mechanics, students usually learn about the countries and people who speak their language. For example, second year Spanish students see movies of Mr. Koch's trips to Ecuador and Peru and learn to read common signs seen in Spanish shops; second year French Students learn the tunes and lyrics to popular French folk songs; second year German students do a time line of German history since 1700 or a paper on Germany's geography; second year Latin students study Roman history, life, and mythology and read Caesar's Gallic Wars.

Opposite, above: Listen and speak—that is what these German I students do as they listen to native speakers and repeat what they hear.

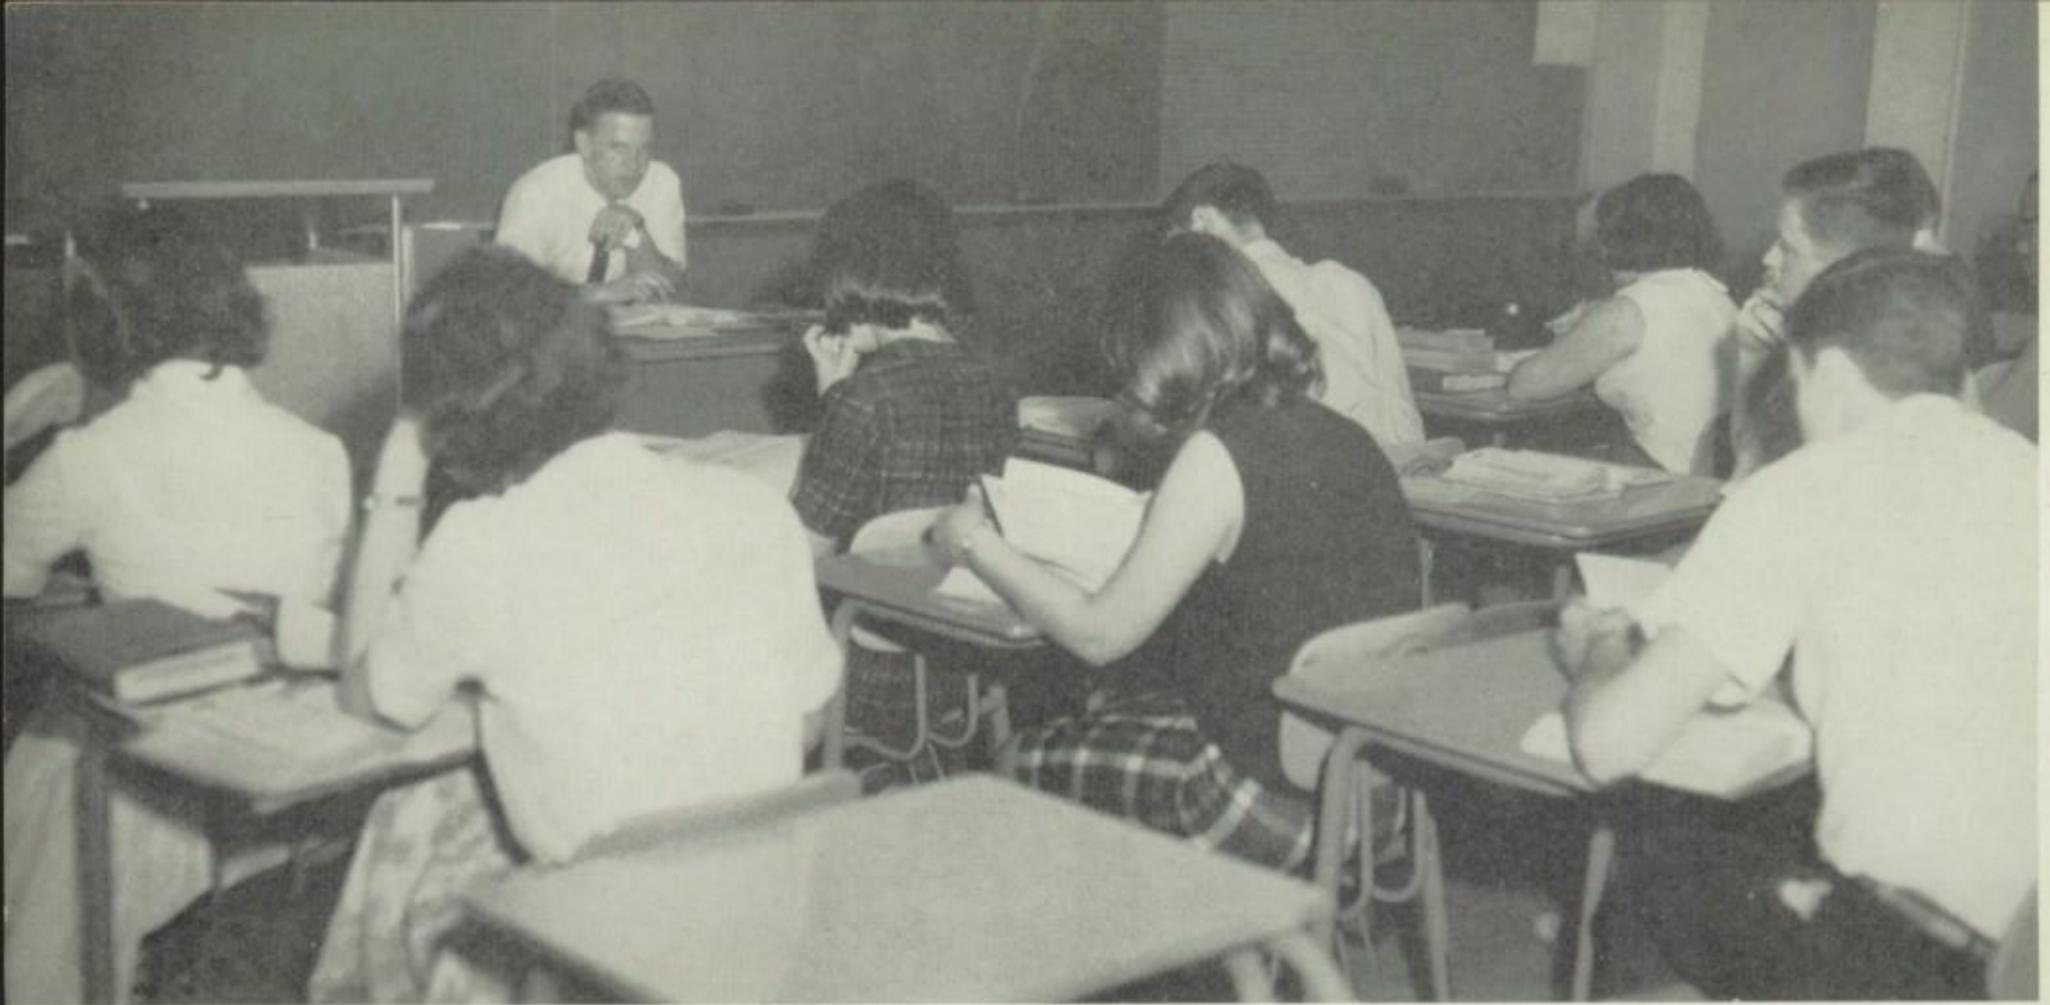

Opposite, lower left: Mr. Koch's Spanish I and II lab classes listen to recordings of Spanish readings and recite each phrase back to improve their pronunciation and increase their speed.

Opposite, lower right: Mr. Koch can listen to his students as a class or individually and make suggestions by turning the knobs at the control board.

Right: Fabrizio de Genna and Alex Acosta, foreign exchange students from Ecuador, not only attend classes in our school but also buy their lunches in our cafeteria.

Students learn math

Lower right: Miss Church's trigonometry students concentrate on their test, using what they have learned about logarithms and angles.

Below: Mr. Phillips' fifth period physics class listens to Joe Serene explain the different steps of an experiment.

Students had the opportunity this year to learn anything from $1+1=2$ to $E=mc^2$. Math and science departments hummed with formulas and new terminology. Biology students learned about plant and animal structures by dissecting frogs, fish, worms, clams, and grasshoppers in biology laboratory. Chemistry and physics students had lab once a week. In chemistry lab, juniors worked with metals, acids, bases, and salts as well as test tubes, beakers, and platform balances. No doubt the whole school remembers the pungent odor of the sulfur experiment. In physics lab, seniors investigated the properties of heat, light, sound, and mechanics.

New terms—logarithm, derivative, and matrix—took their place in mathematical vocabularies while slide rules, protractors, and compasses became useful tools. Geometry or General Math, required courses, are usually taken by sophomores. Trigonometry, Algebras I through V, Finite Math, and Calculus and Analytic Geometry posed problems to those who elected the courses as a preparation for college. Each student in Mr. Simpson's Finite Math classes gave a fifty minute lecture.

Upper left: Gaining experience for her future teaching career, Mr. Holstein's student teacher instructs students in the structure and habits of the snake.

Above: Mr. Harmon's student teacher explains the chemical equations representing the reactions in the Solvay process, producing bicarbonate of soda.

Business Education students were characterized by odd writing and balanced budgets. If anyone chose to find out why, he should learn that Shorthand and Bookkeeping were offered this year. Requirements for these students were Typing I and II, Business Mathematics, Elements of Business, and Office Machines. Aside from learning how to type and take dictation, the terminal students learned how to write business letters, and they also took Consumer Education. The required subjects for the Business Curriculum this year were Typing I and II; Elements of Business, a course in basic business practices and theories; and Office Machines. Electives included Shorthand I; Transcription and Dictation, a continuation of Shorthand I; and Office Techniques and Machines. The Business Department, headed by Mr. Schell, also offered subjects to people in other curriculums. Personal Typing and Notehand were offered to anyone interested in shortening his homework hours. Some students tried their hand at writing contracts as they studied Business Law. The Business Department saved teachers time by running off their tests and study guides for them while, at the same time, preparing for jobs in a business society. A few business courses in the "open" category to all students were Bookkeeping, a course designed to aid in keeping records of expenses; Notehand, a basic shorthand for classroom use; and Personal Typewriting, a convenience for writing letters and doing homework. A very comprehensive business program was offered at I. J. S. H. S.

Upper right: By doing selected typing exercises, Miss Tomie's Typing II students improve their typing speed on standard and electric machines.

Center right: Elements of Business is taught to students in the business curriculum as a required subject. Mr. Stahlman instructs his class about basic business practices.

Musicians and artists create harmony and perspective.

Below: Although the student body only hears the Mixed Chorus once in assembly, the Mixed Chorus presents two other concerts to the public. Under the careful direction of Mr. Thomas, the Mixed Chorus rehearses.

The art program at I. J. S. H. S. was designed to satisfy the creative urge of the students and was planned according to individual interests, needs, and abilities. For this reason, students who elected art were encouraged to work in the areas of their choice which might include silk screen, industrial design, advanced jewelry, pottery, commercial art, fashion design, advanced painting skills, stage design, metal plating, drawing, and sculpturing. An art student had his choice of either fine arts or crafts.

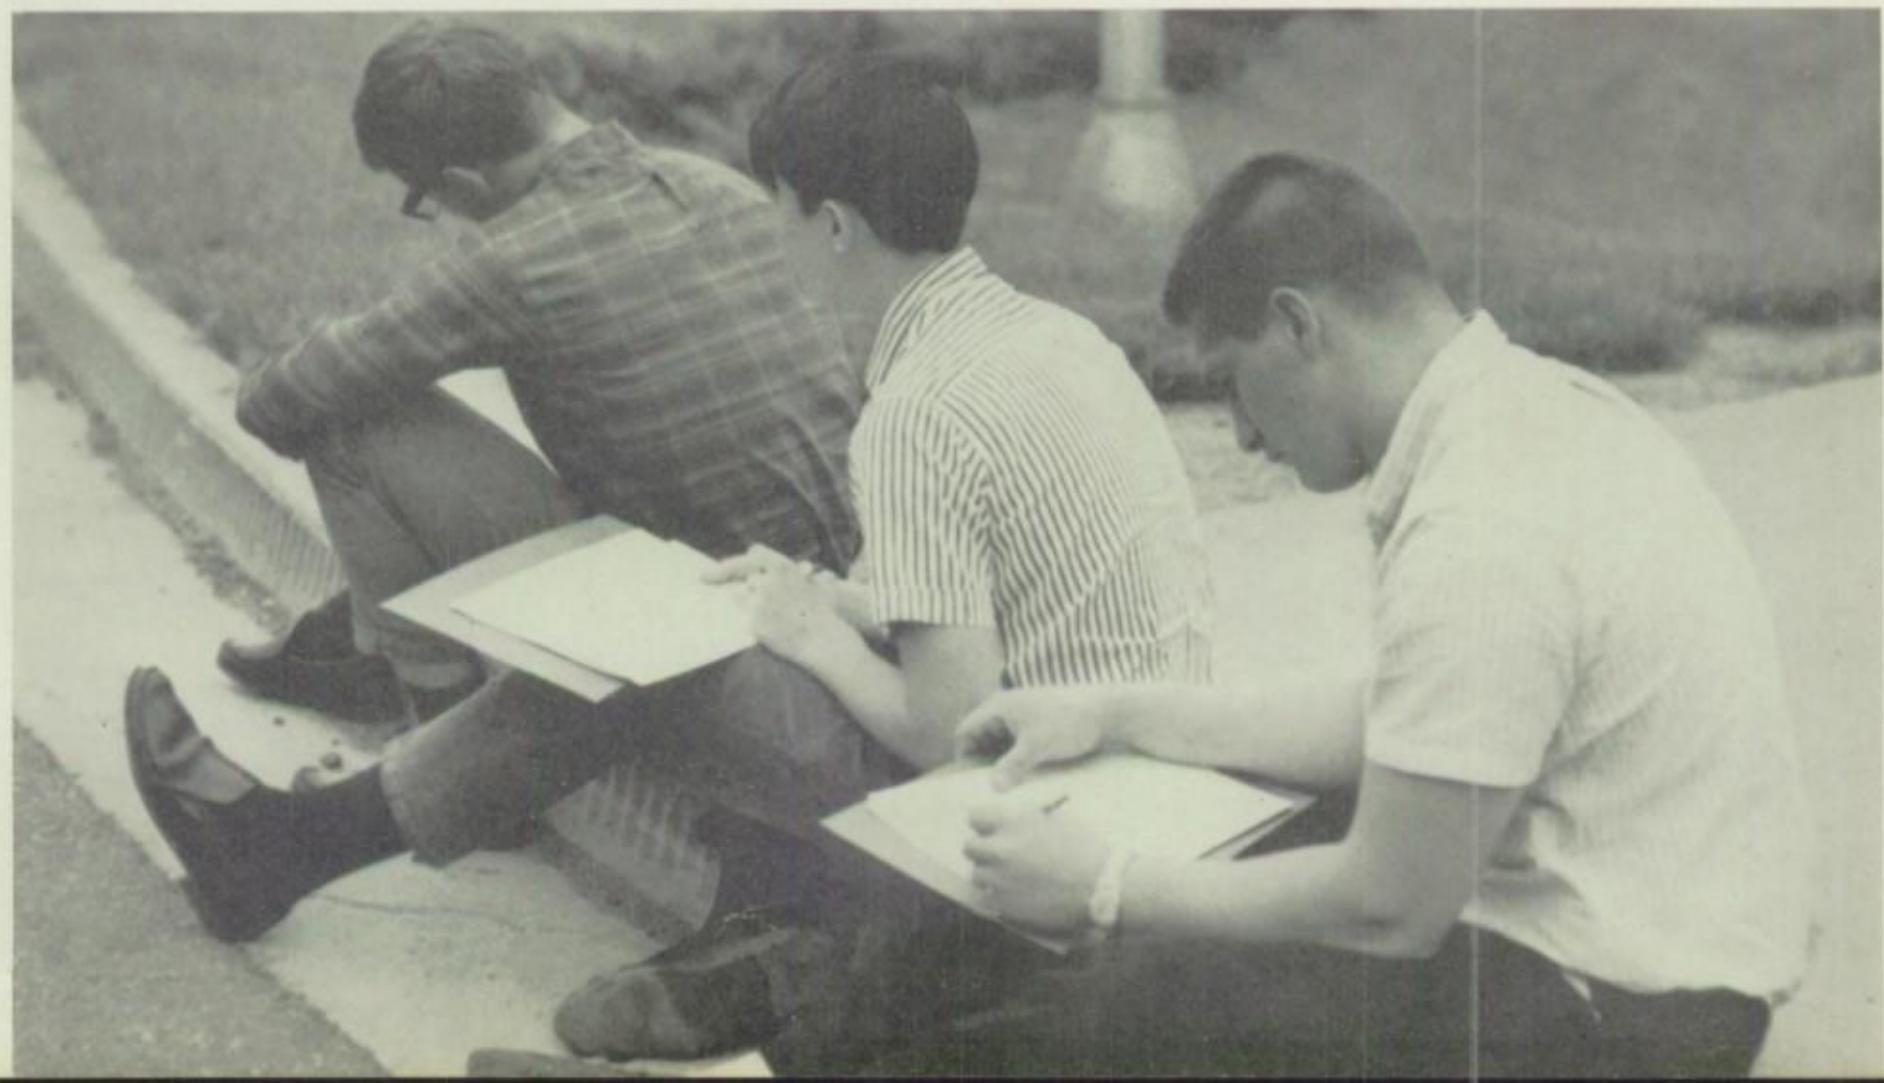

The singing of students and the wailing of trumpets were familiar sounds to I. J. S. H. S. students as they passed through the lobby and heard our band and choruses rehearsing. Students interested in music found a large variety of courses offered in these areas. An outlet for the students who were musically inclined was found through these courses, designed to help the students learn and understand the different areas of music. The band and its various groups—marching band, concert band, orchestra, and stage band—were elected by students who played musical instruments. Students who enjoyed singing joined the mixed chorus, girls' glee club, Melody Maids, or Indi-Anns.

Workers of tomorrow prepare today . . .

Learning to cook and sew are not the only things taught in the homemaking curriculum. Special emphasis is also placed on child care and guidance, family health and safety, family clothing, and home management. In the Home and Family Living course, a new class for both boys and girls, students are prepared for future years as home managers: they study housing for the family, household care and equipment, family finance, food for the family, entertaining and social acceptance in the community.

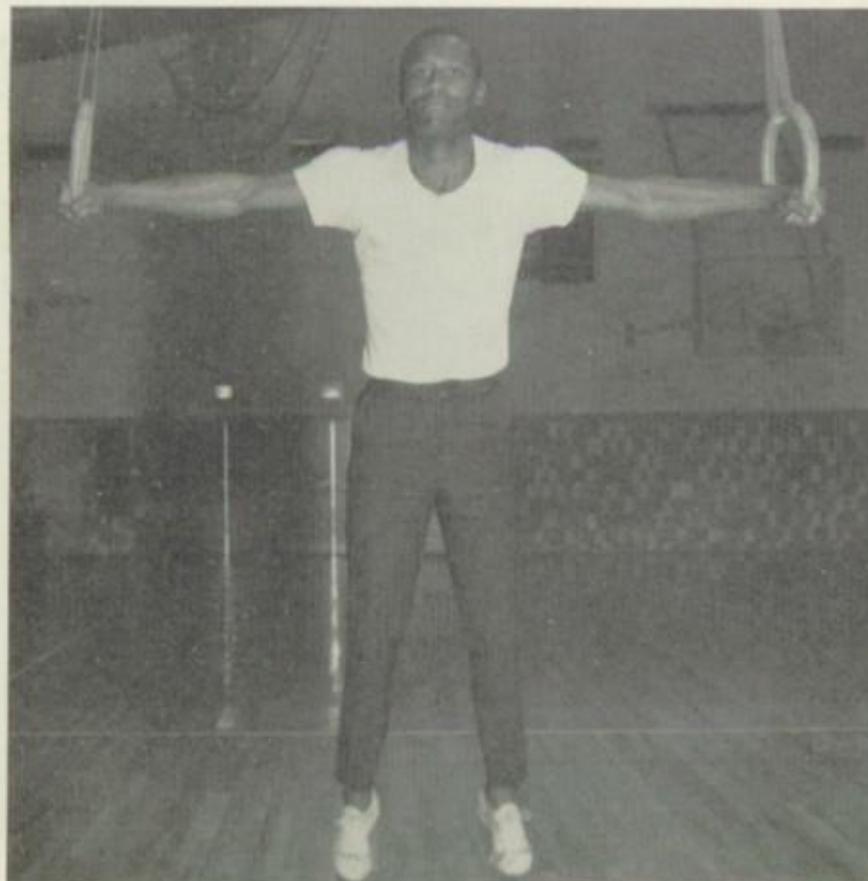

In the Industrial Arts Curriculum the four one-semester courses which are required are woodworking, metalshop, electricity, and mechanical drawing. After having experience in these areas, students may select other courses in one specific area.

Left: students in wood shop apply the finishing touches to their projects. Mr. Banks's electronics class learns about simple and closed circuits on individual sets. Terri Morretti saws a metal pipe into several pieces during his class in metal work.

*Here's our answer to

Moans and groans filled the halls and rooms as students discovered muscles they never knew they had. Two days a week in physical education classes, field hockey, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, track, and creative dancing, a newly introduced activity, were the pursuits of the girls while the boys classes undertook wrestling, basketball, volleyball, softball, and work on the apparatus. The warm-up exercises helped to dispel the aches and pains of previous gym classes.

Health was a required subject for tenth graders. By means of film strips this two-day-a-week course acquainted students with the structure of the human body and healthful living conditions.

Another required subject for tenth grade students was safety education. Safety education students were made aware of the rules of safe driving through discussions, movies, and film strips. The only requirements necessary for a student to elect driver's education were that he be sixteen or over and have a learner's permit. In driver's education cars the students were taught the fundamentals of driving through practice behind the steering wheel. The student driver was taught how to drive both standard and automatic shifts, how to handle a car in traffic, how to park a car, and how to prepare for the big day—the day of his driver's test.

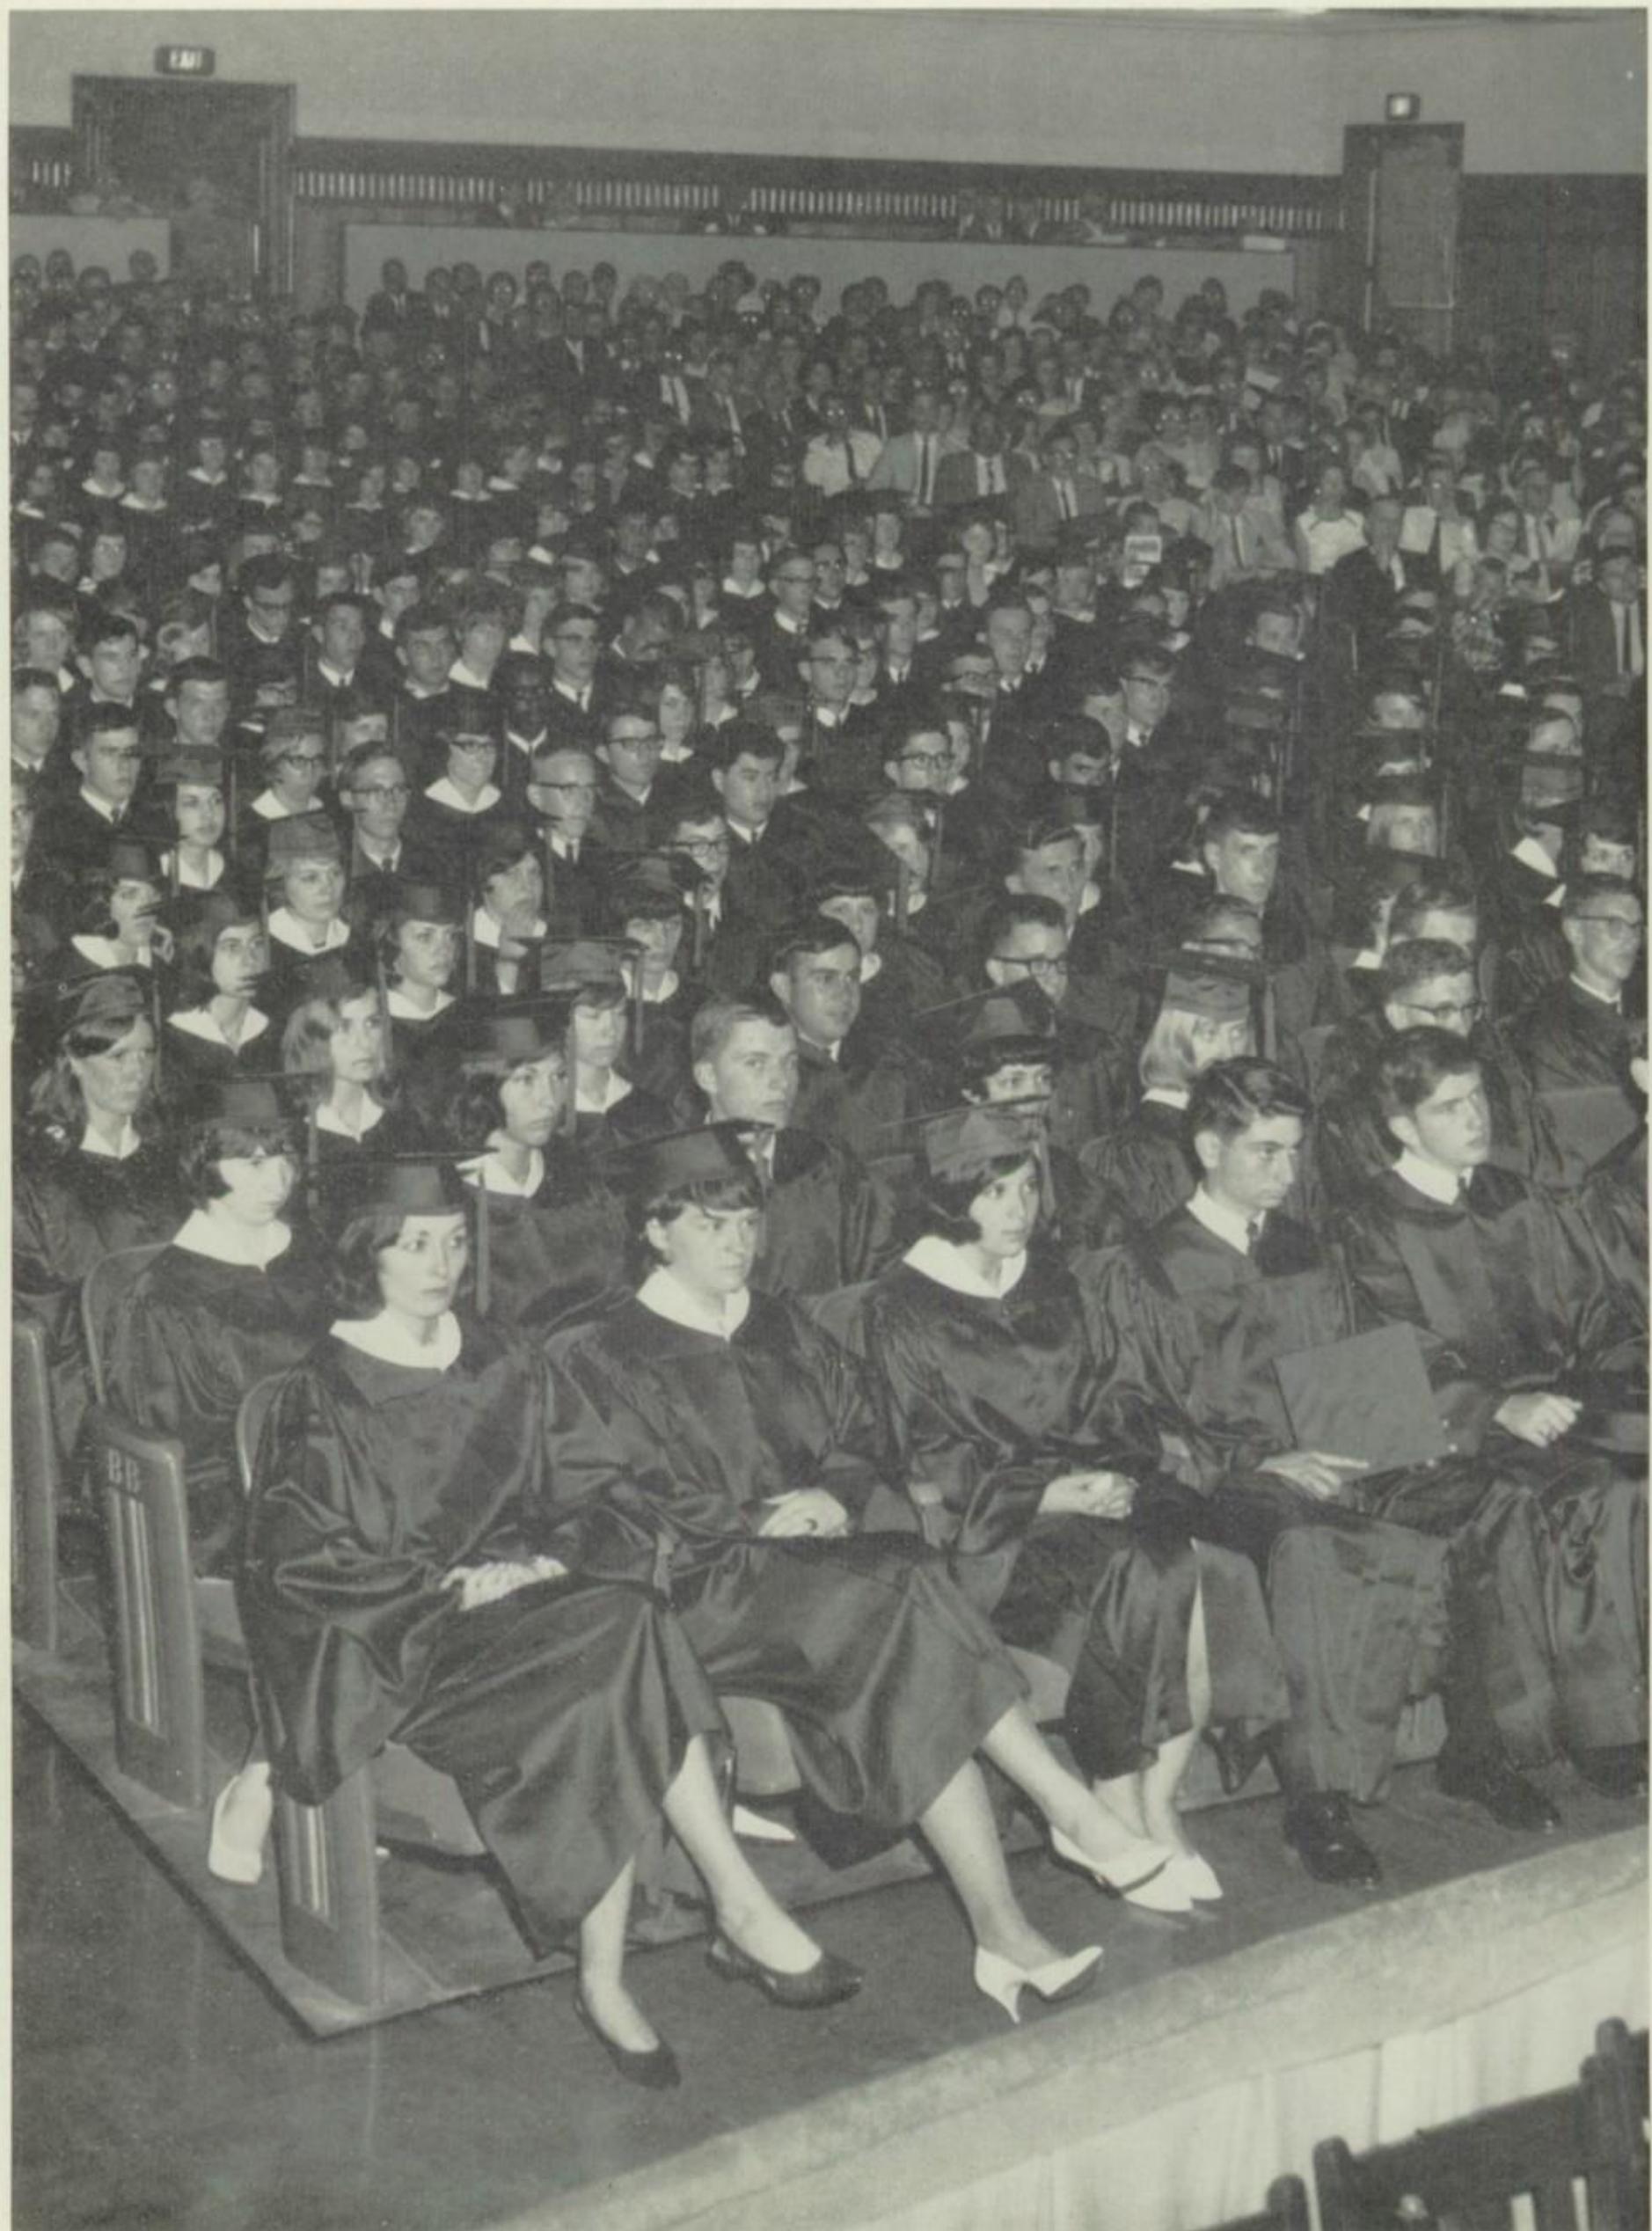

and to other problems.

CLASSES

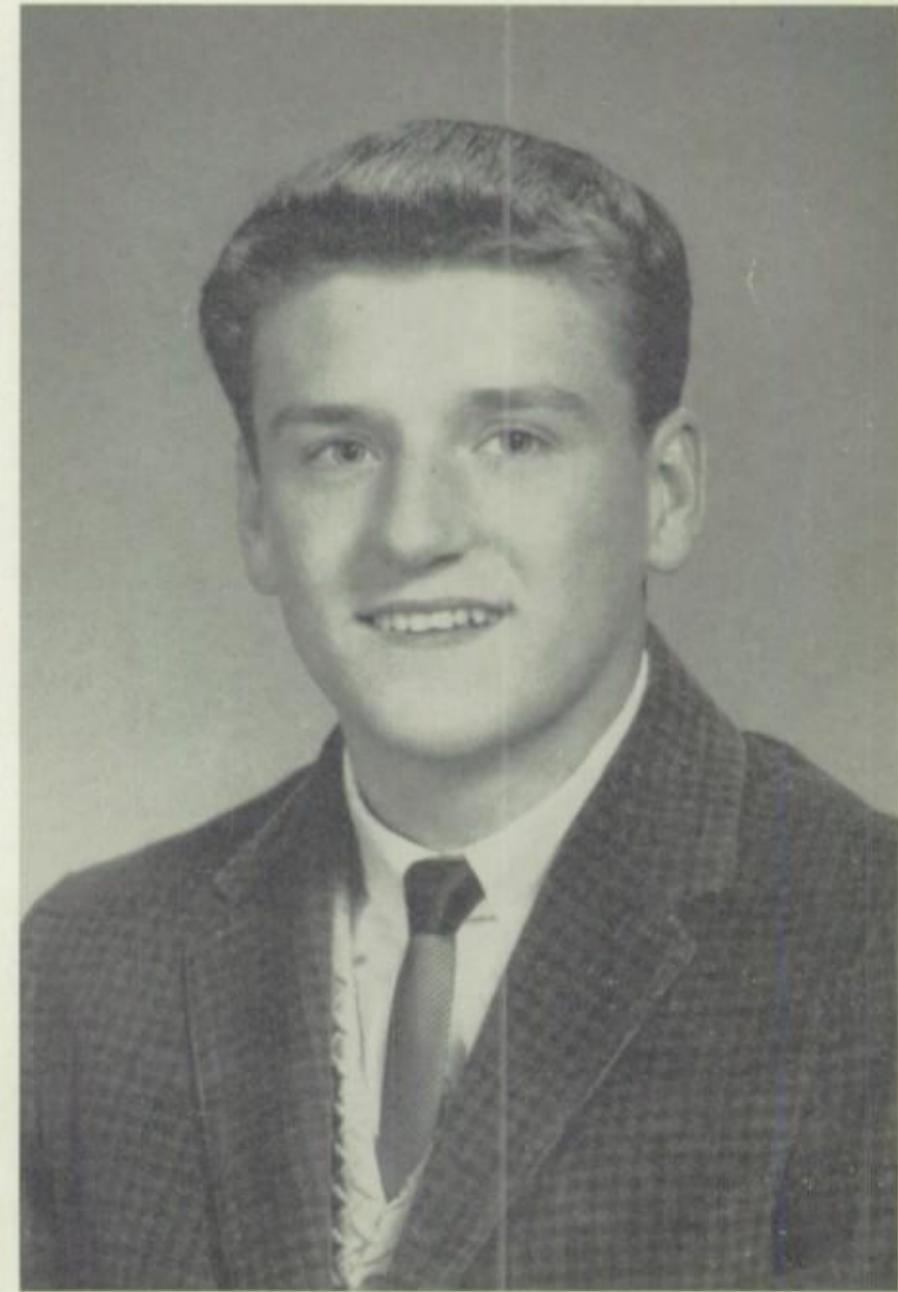

... getting up on dark winter mornings; gulping down breakfast and remembering lunch money ... carrying shoes; dashing to the cafeteria for a place in line ... finishing up homework assignments before the bell rings ... struggling with hairdos; looking for special people in the halls ... finding an "A" on a report card; realizing suddenly a whole paragraph in French; seeing your best friend on stage; winning a football game or a new charm for a bracelet; dancing the frug ... electing class officers; counting days until school is out . . . Seniors, juniors and sophomores shared many experiences that united the classes.

The Senior Class Dance was held Saturday Evening, February 27, 1965. The 125 couples who attended the dance thought the Mardi Gras theme a very original one. The Tri-Hi-Y, under the sponsorship of Mrs. DeGae-tano, was responsible for decorations and refreshments. Music was provided by the Stardusters. At intermission, the class flower (a rose), colors (burgundy and white), and motto (the stumbling blocks of life are the stepping stones of success) were announced.

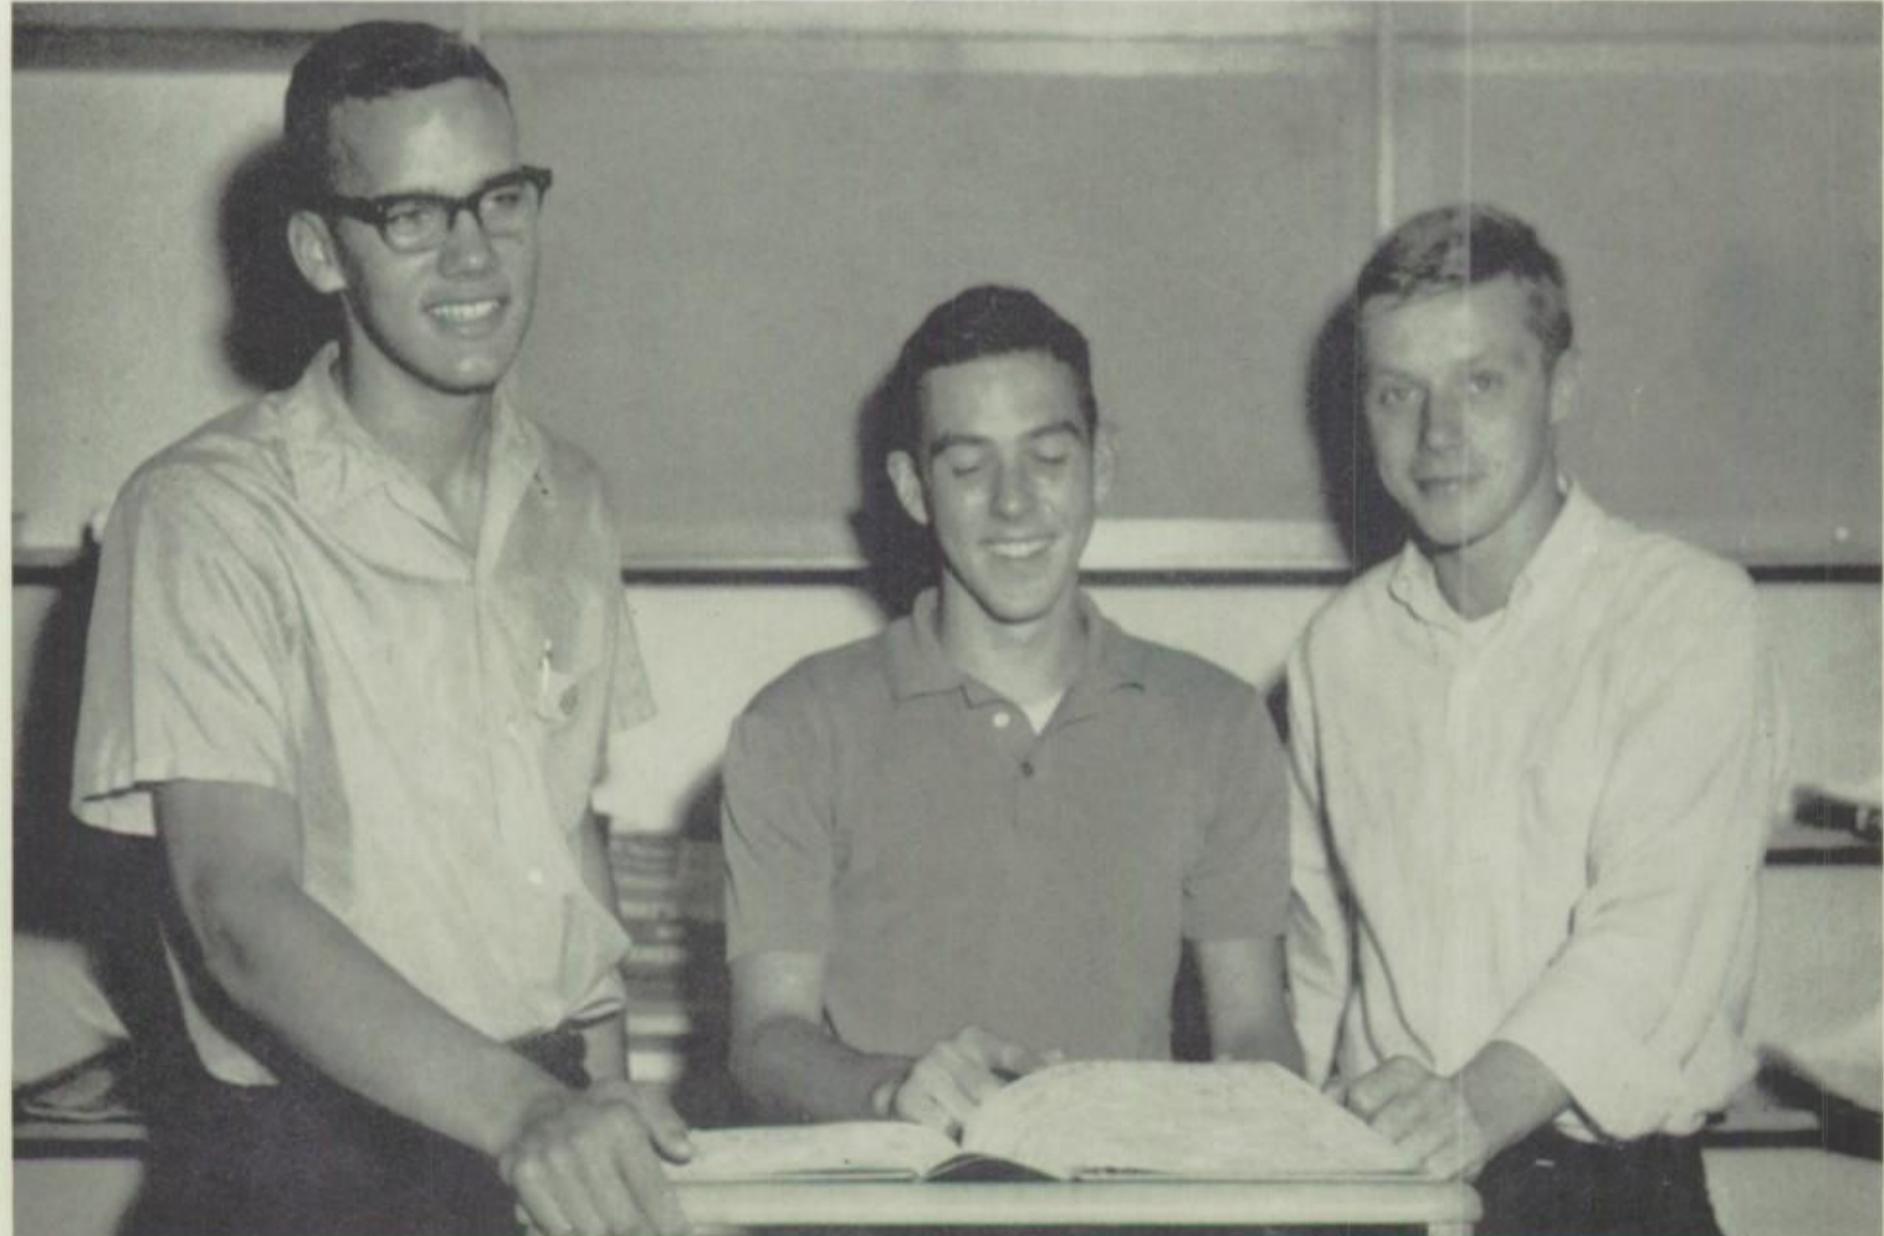

Seniors, however, also set aside a time for study. The students made good use of the library for their research papers, themes, and book reports. Classroom time was devoted to listening, evaluating, and taking notes.

Seniors balance studies and fun.

Solemn or smiling-- seniors graduate.

The 359 members of the Class of 1965 marched slowly down the aisles of Fisher Auditorium on June eighth, of a rainy Tuesday evening to the music of "War March of the Priests," by Mendelssohn and played by Mr. Nordby. After Tim McCoy's invocation, Jack Bell introduced the speakers who gave inspiring speeches on what our goals must be. They were: Dave Sokol, Sharon O'Keiff, Darwin Stapleton, Jo-Una Spadafora, and Joe Serene. Following these students, Steve Skorija played a piano solo, titled "Septimus," composed by another member of the class of '65, Fred Burggraf.

Kay Lowman happily accepts her diploma and Mr. Getts' congratulations. Daisy McAdams is coming across stage for her turn.

Heavy rain stops just in time for procession to leave the gym for Fisher Auditorium.

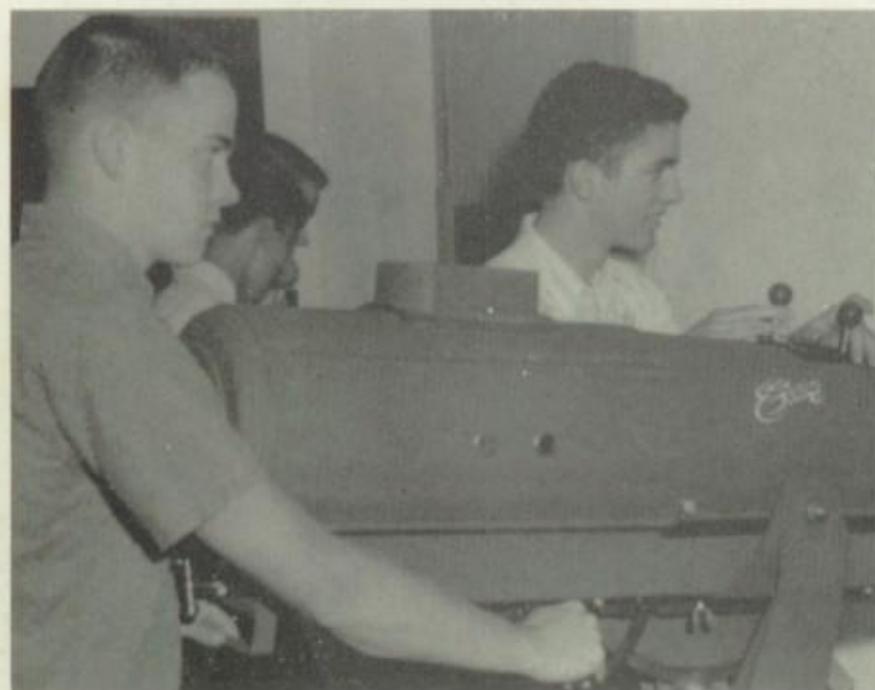

Diplomas were then presented by Superintendent Getts, assisted by Nancy Wright, class secretary, and Don Kuty, treasurer. The graduation ceremony concluded with the recessional of the seniors from the auditorium to the music of "Festive March," by Blackmore. After the ceremony, the students were met with congratulations and best wishes from families and friends. Some were smiling and others crying, not knowing how to feel on this long awaited occasion.

dents for next year. Below: Twenty-five minute lunch period scarcely seems long enough for swallowing books as well as food.

Juniors find a new year of challenges.

Above: Juniors demonstrate various ways of listening in assembly.

Below: Responding vigorously to Pep Club appeal, "Clean-up Day", juniors collect most trash from their lockers in least time.

From the first day of school where they found they were no longer the "babies" to the last day when they became the Senior Class, the juniors' year was filled with activity and work. Many had new experiences awaiting them as they stepped into the world of chemistry, language labs, or a journalism class. Later in the year, a few deserving juniors were elected to membership into the National Honor Society and were inducted during the annual assembly. On May first, juniors began to think about college and careers as about three-fourths of them went to the college campus for three hours of College Board Exams. Also in May a vigorous campaign got under way and the students elected Jay Stump as Student Council President. Linda Burtyk and Kerry Simpson were chosen squaw and chief for the coming year. And about a week before school ended, the juniors had another new experience—finals. For most, the English and history tests were a fine way to end a year of challenging work and busy days.

Sophomore schedules included such new classes as biology, speech, geometry, and safety education. Along with these went new experiences like language labs, animal dissection, and library research. In their English classes, besides having speech practice, they undertook the task of interpreting Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar."

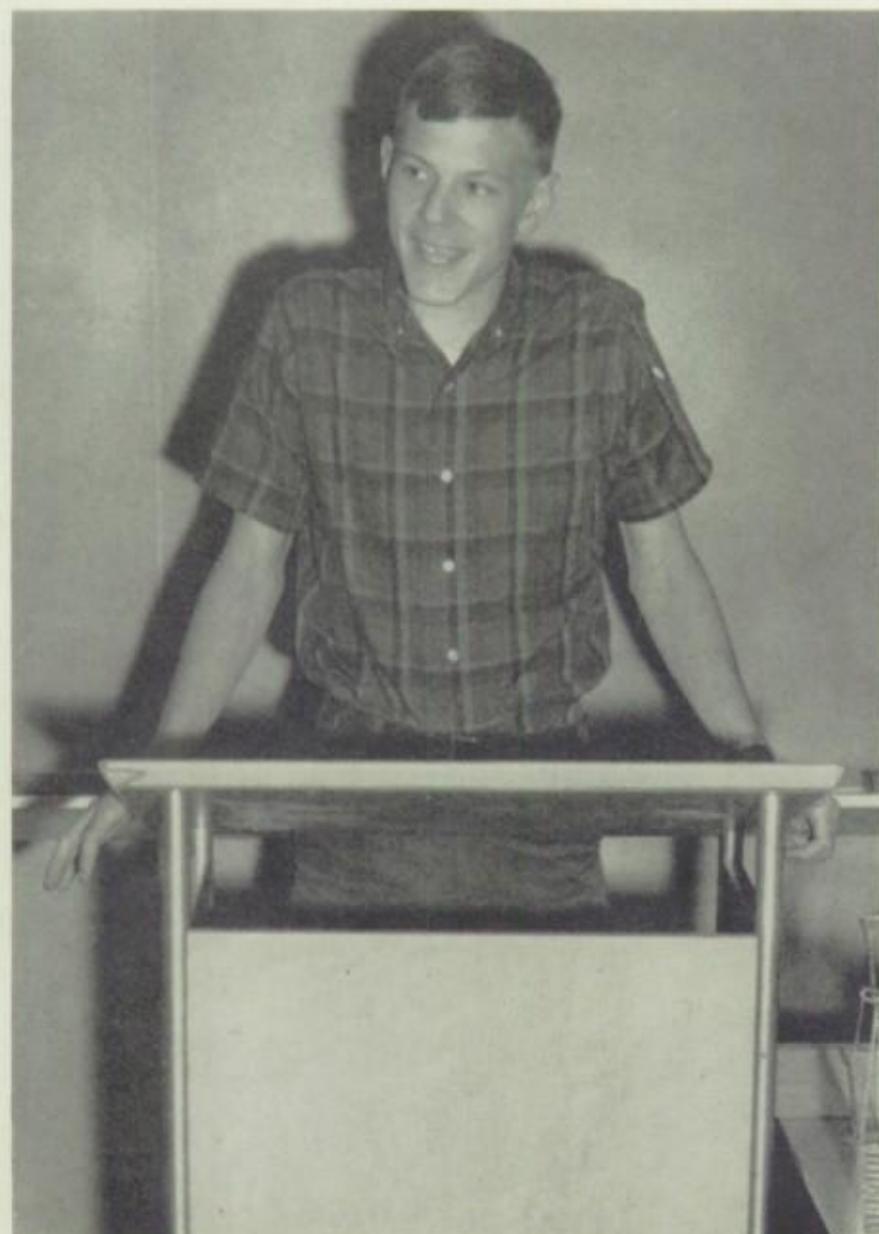

In the area of competition, Carole Cheely was victorious in the race for next year's Student Council vice-president. Beverly Adams, Vicki Belash, Judy Collins, Nancy Mayor, and Claudette Schofield were chosen as next year's varsity cheerleaders. From a field of fifteen finalists, Dorina Bruce, Sue Burns, Mary Irvin, Debbie Mabon, and Sandy Warner were victors in the contest for majorettes.

ACTIVITIES

... yelling during the kickoff of the first home football game; seeing Indiana make the winning basket to break a tie game ... feeling slightly dizzy from seeing red and black blurs in the halls on Color Day; straining to hear the music at record hops in the Commons ... gasping with pride and awe as the Homecoming Queen and her court rode around the football field ... the joy of winning and the sorrow of defeat at Intramurals; the astonishment of seeing a play and appreciating the talent in our school; the pleasure in seeing the school's new glow at the Prom ... Extra activities filled the year with good times and fond memories.

The National Honor Society Induction Assembly was held in the auditorium on April 23, 1965. Juniors and seniors who had successfully fulfilled the requirements of Character, Service, Leadership, and Scholarship were received into the organization by President Polly Barber. Afterward a reception for members and their parents was held in the library. Earlier in the year, the senior members attended a dinner at the home of their sponsor, Miss Laura Church. They were recognized for their achievements on April 26, 1965 at a dinner given by the Kiwanians. The officers for the year were: Polly Barber, president; Lola Bence, vice-president; Jo-Una Spadafora, secretary; Joe Serene, treasurer; Patty Yackubosky and Don Kuty, ushers. At the Awards Assembly, membership pins, donated by the Kiwanis Club, were given to the members.

Scholars are honored for academic success.

Joe Serene demonstrates his findings at the Science Fair.

This year, again under the sponsorship of Mr. Harmon and presidency of Joseph Serene, the Science Club endorsed the same activities as last year: they held a school science fair and sponsored the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Junior Academy of Science. The winners of the school science fair, headed by Joseph Serene's first place in physics, were presented awards recognizing their achievements. Second place in advanced biology went to Darwin Stapleton, second place in chemistry to David Scott, and second place in mathematics to Donald Burggraf; students who won awards in the regional competition were presented with their certificates and prizes.

The 1964-65 school term saw an active Student Council led by its officers President Mark Caldwell, Vice President Ray Cheely, Secretary Jean Buggey, and Treasurer Kerry Simpson. The councils' first project was the Homecoming Weekend which was strongly supported by all of the students. It was highlighted by several events Opening on Friday afternoon, with the unveiling of the new totem pole. It included a football game, a powder puff football game, and a homecoming dance. In February with the hope of improving our present council, eleven representatives attended a county-wide Student Council Workshop at Laura Lamar. This school term was the first for many new policies. For the first time class officers were elected; meetings were held during school time in rotating periods. Through the first two weeks of May the Student Council elections for the '65-66 school year took place. In a very close race, Jay Stump was elected president and Carol Cheely vice-president.

Without the efficient help of our LIBRARY AIDES, our library would surely not be what it is. The girls volunteered to work in the library during their free periods, helping Miss Barger, the librarian. Various jobs which they handled were shelving books, reading shelves, checking books, and returning passes to teachers.

Smiling faces that greeted arrivals for the school's functions were those of USHERS CLUB. This group of students collected tickets, issued programs, and directed the audience in finding seats. Kept busy this year with the production of four school plays, the group earned the letters they received on Awards Day.

Under the leadership of President Polly Barber, and Advisor Miss Bell, the RED CROSS performed many service projects throughout the school year. One of their biggest achievements was the work they did at Indian Haven. Many extra hours after school and on Saturday's were spent serving trays and feeding the patients. At Christmas, they decorated the home and sang carols. Another project was making food baskets for the poor at Christmas and Easter. The organization also made May baskets for the County Home.

Tri-Hi-Y clubs help

Busily making a hedge of paper napkins, these Twelfth Grade Tri-Hi-Y members are getting ready for the Senior Class Dance.

Service projects and social activities kept the Twelfth Grade Tri-Hi-Y girls busy during their last year. Janie Lemmon was the president of this active club. Serving under her were Kathy Thomas, vice president; Linda Holley, secretary; Nancy Wright, treasurer; and Barb Mabon, chaplain. With the assistance of their sponsor, Mrs. DeGaetano, the girls held a clothing drive, made cards for the hospital, collected pop bottles, and showed their creativity by making Easter baskets for the Salvation Army. Their big project, which was a great success, was the Senior Class Dance.

President Darlene Swineford led the 11th Grade Tri-Hi-Y in discussions and activities. The other officers elected were Diane Lewis, vice president; Dotsy Spinelli, secretary; Linda Wilson, treasurer; and Marty Hassler, chaplain. The club was represented at the Annual Youth Conference, held in Butler on October 17, by Bea States and Jeanne Enderlein. A dinner at Bruno's on February 2 for all members was one of the club's activities. A swimming party was held on March 18 at the Junior High School pool. After the party the girls went to Mrs. Creps' home for refreshments. On March 23, Dr. William Hassler, Liberal Arts Dean at I.S.C., spoke to the group on "Religion versus Science." Other functions included helping with Tag Day on April 3 and nominating new officers.

The Tenth Grade Tri-Hi-Y had a very busy year, guided by their sponsor, Miss Stevenson. Mary Irvin led the girls as president, and received help from Nancy Armour, vice-president; Bobbi Jo Merlo, secretary; Cindy McKown, treasurer; and Sue Fiscus, chaplain; as well as the other girls. Members worked very hard at service projects such as stuffing envelopes for the Tuberculosis Society and collecting for the Easter Seals Campaign. They also showed their kindness by sending Christmas cards to Miss Viola Simpson. One of their last efforts of the year was the addressing of invitations to the faculty for the last school play, "Bye Bye Birdie." Along with their hard work they found enjoyment in a dinner held at Bruno's and a swimming party held at the Junior High School.

Key Club once again showed its worth during the past year by continuing its service as well as many other worthwhile projects. Dave Sokol, president; Myron Tomb, vice-president; Mark Caldwell, secretary; and Joe Banksosky, treasurer, were the boys elected to see that these tasks were completed. The boys started off the year by making the totem pole presently standing in front of the school. They distributed posters and collected money for the Tuberculosis Society, washed the refuse cans up-town once a week, and helped with the Christmas Angel. On March 12, the annual Key Club Night was held. At this time about fifteen boys were initiated into the club.

Stewart, Linda Bathurst, Harry Baker, Janet Weston, Patty Davis, Bobbie German. Fourth row: Cindy Spurlin, Kathy Coleman, Francie Guerrieri, Mo Mewha, Tina Mauro, Debbie Mindo.

Sherry Shields, president; Bonnie Angel, vice-president; and Fred Badman, secretary-treasurer—along with the rest of the Art Club—were kept busy throughout the year. The club was responsible for all decorations for the Cheerleading Contest held November 12. They made the pennants and participated in the Art Assembly, and helped with many of the decorations for the Senior Class Dance and the Junior-Senior Prom.

One of the new activities this year was the Art History Group. Mrs. Blair was the sponsor, Linda Brown served as chairman, and Darie Davis as co-chairman. The purpose of the group's meetings was to discuss art down through the ages. Mrs. Blair found interesting pictures and books and then informal discussions were held by the members of the group. This new group held meetings twice a month, Monday evenings after school.

The Camera Club under the direction of Mr. Schell responded to the many requests of the journalism classes. They were always present at sports events and social affairs. It was their job to record school events and to take pictures of various school clubs. Members of the club were often found on second floor in the mysterious dark room. The boys not only took the pictures but also developed, printed and marketed them.

Bruce Beaumont, Tim Lillie, and Jay Stump work with the beam spotlight.

The stage crew was kept extra busy this year because of the four plays Mr. Nix presented. Besides those duties, many members helped in setting up and running the lights for assemblies. The members had been chosen the year before and were notified of their acceptance the last day of school. The boys Mr. Nix accepted were: DeWayne Dills, Tim Lillie, Bruce Beaumont, David Scott, Dennis Moore, Ray Cheely, Tom Terry, Robert Walker, Doug Brown, Bruce Faloon, James Mabon, Kerry Simpson and Alan Charlson. Jay Stump and Jim Ferrier were accepted after the start of the new school year.

The lights dim; footsteps are heard; someone whistles "Three Blind Mice"; a scream, a flurry of police whistles, and then silence. Another performance of Agatha Christie's murder mystery, The Mousetrap, had begun. This puzzling whodunit was performed on the auditorium stage on January 29 and 30 under the ever-watchful eye of Mr. Nix. The small cast of eight on the single set skillfully created the suspense which built up to the play's surprise ending.

"Bye-Bye-Birdie"

The final play of the year, Bye-Bye Birdie, a musical, was presented on May 27, 28, and 29 to packed houses. The cast was composed mostly of graduating seniors. The elaborate sets, the dance numbers, and, of course, the songs certainly showed that this unusually large cast of seventy-one and crew worked long and hard and justly deserved the standing ovation after the final curtain.

Music Groups display talent

The Melody Maids, a singing group of thirty, went to Ford City High School and presented two shows early in the year. They sang for the Medical Association at the Country Club and also presented a performance at the V.F.W. for a Lion's Meeting. In the spring months they sang at the Ginny Barclay Banquet, and entertained at the Teachers Tea. Although they varied their program with folk songs and madrigals, audiences seemed to like best their arrangements of "I'm Glad There Is You," "Laura," and "In the Still of the Night."

Performing for another year—their last—the Indi-Anns again gave many fine performances. Usually traveling with the Melody Maids, this barber shop quartet sang such favorites as: "Sentimental Journey," "O Baby Mine," "Row, Row, Row Your Boat," and "Floatin' Down." Many people have enjoyed this group for the last three years, and will surely miss them in the future.

Another newly organized group this year, was the Boys' Hootenanny Group. The boys, Tim Smith, Dale Learn, Jim Ferrier, Steve Skorija, Fred Burggraf, Ken Palmer, and Hal Uffleman, made their first appearance in the fall concert and were well received. Everyone enjoyed their renditions of "Whistling Gypsy," "Tom Dooley," and "The Lemon Tree," as well as other favorites.

A hootenanny group from I.J.S.H.S. made their debut in the talent assembly in April. The quartet, consisting of Darwin Stapleton, Dale Learn, Mary Yackuboskey, and Tim Smith, sang many popular folk songs backed by Dale on the guitar. Because all four were in the class of '65, everyone hopes for another group to take their place next year.

For the nineteenth year, SENIOR BROADCASTING CLUB assumed its duties of preparing radio broadcasts for W.D.A.D. The club held monthly meetings in the library with Mrs. Wadas, club sponsor, and Lola Bence, presiding. Each member had the opportunity of participating in at least one taping for a Sunday evening, fifteen minute recording on W.D.A.D. Various Indiana County organizations joined club members in presenting programs. As a year's-end activity, a picnic was held.

This year's VARSITY "I" CLUB, under the guidance of Drew Nance, president, and Mr. Lengel, advisor, participated in a number of events. Candidates eligible for membership received Varsity letters in sports. On April 9, the club sponsored a gym show, when new members were initiated. They also took part in a tag day. During basketball and wrestling seasons, Varsity "I" members sold refreshments at the games. Senior members of the club received Varsity "I" jackets. Other officers for the '64-'65 year were Rob Boden, vice-president; Joe Midock, secretary; and John Pulsinelli, treasurer.

Marilyn Sakash, as Captain, and Marie Manos, as Co-captain, led the cheerleaders in their numerous activities this year. They started their busy year in the summer, when they could be seen practicing daily. Then came football season where they could be seen leading the crowds in cheers. Shortly after this they acted as hostesses to the Second Annual Cheerleading Contest. Soon all sports events were over and it was time to pick cheerleaders for next year. After several weeks of practice, finals were held March 26. Bev Adams, Vicki Belash, Leslie Clark, Judy Collins, Izzy Farabaugh, Claudette Scholfield, Nancy Mayer, and Linda Wellen were chosen as the new Varsity squad. The Jayvee cheerleading squad will be comprised of Peggy Altemus, Jackie Fedder, Sue Fiscus, Ruth Klawuhn, Judy Lewis, and Patti VanDoren. President Sue Irvin led the PEP CLUB to the busiest year they've had since the club began functioning. They began their activities by attending all football games, and painting colorful victory signs as well. On November 6, they held their annual Senior Salute. Mothers of all of the senior players were presented with white chrysanthemums. Also during football season the club sold red and black pom poms. The next event Pep Club participated in was the cheering contest, where they were responsible for refreshments. Although they were not in uniform during basketball season, their cheering could still be heard and their colorful signs could still be seen on the walls of the gym. In April, Pep Club sponsored a school spirit week. Each day something different was done to promote school spirit. Finally, on Friday, April 9, an all-school talent show was held. The eight acts composed a lively show which the students seemed to enjoy. Pep Club activities were concluded for the year with a picnic.

Our peppy majorettes, under captain Twila Cramer, proved to be a valuable asset to our school. During the last two weeks of August, these ten girls diligently worked on marching routines and twirling skills; and after the school year began, they practiced seventh period with the band. A dinner at Bruno's was the highlight of football season, where the senior majorettes—Twila Cramer, Bonnie Johnson, Kathy Hill, Maggie Huffman, Cindy Peters, and Linda Altman—were presented white mum corsages. Various activities which the majorettes participated in throughout the year were football games, parades and an excellent demonstration of their ability during the intermission of the Second Annual Cheering Contest.

On November 9, about thirty freshman, sophomore, and junior girls began trying out for the vacant positions in the Majorette squad. The girls had to compete not only against each other, but also against the previous year's majorettes who had to try out again. Early in December, the majorettes for next year were chosen after three eliminations from a group of fifteen finalists to a group of nine girls. The majorettes for next year are Jeanne Butterworth, captain; Mary C. Gordon, co-captain; Phyllis Putt, Karen Longwill, Sue Burns, Dorina Bruce, Mary Irvin, Debby Mabon, Sandy Varner and Aleda Pulsinelli.

At the beginning of the year the Future Homemakers of America elected the following officers: president, Dawna Baker; vice-president, Cathy Fedor; secretary, Connie Holt; and treasurer, Carol Gray. Activities for the year included caroling at Christmas, a party at Mrs. Rairigh's home, preparing a food box for the Christmas Angel, and sending a student to the Farm Show in Harrisburg. In May, members served refreshments at the Prom. As a final treat, the group had a dinner at Bruno's. Their future activities will include a trip to Penn State for three days in the summer. Money-making projects consisted of bake sales and a pop bottle collection.

Our branch of the F.F.A., a national organization consisting of rural youths studying vocational agriculture, held meetings twice a month. Our chapter sponsored both educational and recreational activities related to agriculture. Several activities included a Greenhand and Chapter Farmer Initiation, a trip to the State farm show in Harrisburg, an officers' leadership training camp, a public speaking and parliamentary procedure contest, several community service projects, Indiana-Cambria county judging contests, F.F.A. Activities Week at Penn State University, and a Parent and Son Banquet. All of these activities, under the direction of Mr. McMullen, were conducted to help train members for future rural leadership.

Cathy Moreau, as president of the FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS, led the club during the past year. Meeting twice a month this club comprised of business students had one primary function. This was to earn money to give to an outstanding business student at the end of the year. For nearly six weeks, members of the Future Business Leaders collected pop bottles to earn these funds. They were successful in their campaign. On awards day, Cathy Moreau was presented with a fifty dollar award as outstanding business student. At the end of the year the club held its annual picnic.

Dottie Yanish led the club as president. Other officers were: Karen Nastase, vice-president; Grace Medlock, secretary; and Patti Kunkle, treasurer. Their main project of the year was the "Tinsel Ball." This replaced the Shamrock Shuffle, which was held in previous years. As chairman of this dance, Denise Oliverio made this a fine accomplishment for the club. Another activity in which the F.T.A. participated was the Central Western convention held in Blairsville where Linda Roof was elected president of the Central Western chapter. The girls also collected for Easter seals showing their value as a service club. In April Dottie Yanish and Karen Nastase, and club sponsor, Mr. Malacarne attended the F.T.A. convention located in Harrisburg. As their final project of the year the girls of F.T.A. sponsored a faculty tea. They presented the "Best Teacher of the Year" award.

SPORTS

... the crack of a ball against a bat; the roar of a crowd; the crashing of helmets of opposing teams; the thud of the shotput ... the groans of players after the first week of practice; gasps of breath taken by track team running the mile ... the bang of the gun to start the events; the mumbled anger of Mr. Farabaugh when Indiana fumbles the ball ... thump of basketball as the center dribbles down the floor; chants of cheerleaders; pounding megaphones against the floor; the slap of a wrestler pinning his man ... the war whoops of chief and squaw; the applause of students as varsity members receive their letters; the excitement of the crowd with only a few seconds left ... the dust as player slides into home base; the whistle as a player makes a foul; the swish of the net as the basketball passes through ... medals, letters, jackets, trophies, and scholarships for outstanding performance ... These are tangible aspects of sports.

Push, pull, grunt, shove. Sound like a good fight? No, it's football training camp. Last August, the entire football team spent two hot, humid weeks training for the upcoming season. Since only two lettermen returned to the line, Coach Farabaugh kept a lookout for talent. The team pummeled, and grappled, and ran into shape. By the end of the two weeks, the boys were an exhausted but co-ordinated whole. Although there was a short, blessed lull in the training before the start of school, the team got back into the groove as soon as after-school practice began.

Two home games reveal fighting spirit.

Victory accompanied the Braves in the sixth game of the season as they defeated the Golden Tide of Curwensville 26-0. Through the impressive efforts of "Nitro" Joe Midock, who scored two touchdowns as well as excelling in the running and pass-receiving departments, Indiana scored its second win of the season.

Indiana's unforgettable football game in the 1964-65 season was the upset over Northern Cambria for the Farabaughmen's first victory. Neither a driving rainstorm nor a power failure could thwart the valiant efforts of the Little Injuns. Playing one of the best games of the season, the Braves displayed a rock-ribbed defense that shut off the colts as they won their tenth game in the eleven-year-old series. The strong wind and slippery football killed the passing attack of the Colts.

Just before half-time a steady downpour drenched spectators and players, but a few faithful fans remained throughout the entire game as the field became a sea of mud. The Colts led by a 13-7 margin at half-time. Drew Nance, powerful left halfback, cracked into the end zone as the lights went out at the beginning of the third quarter with the score deadlocked at 13-13. After a twenty minute delay the game resumed with Indiana controlling the ball. Once again the hard-charging Injuns broke through the Colts' defense for Rob Boden to score. Never relinquishing, Indiana controlled the last five minutes and ran out the clock to register a 20-19 win.

The Indiana Junior Varsity finished their 1964 football season with a winning 4-2 record. They began their successful season on September 21, beating Punxsutawney 13-6. Their second win, 13-6, against Central Cambria was played on home ground. The last two games of the season against Northern Cambria and Purchase Line were wins for the J.V.'s. These games were also played on home ground.

The Junior Varsity squad had the same practices as the Varsity. Every evening after school both teams were hard at work preparing for their opponents. The Junior Varsity team turned in a fine record which promises much for next year.

The Li'l Injuns raised the curtain of the 1964-65 basketball season by showing a completely new line-up from last year's squad. The only Varsity members remaining were Bob Mock, Dale Thompson, and Carl Cunningham. The first victory for the team was against Purchase Line as they whipped the Liners 84-68, and the Indians racked up number two as they knocked Blairsville from the ranks of the unbeaten, 60-52. But the cagers were defeated by the Ferndale Yellow Jackets and by Windber to make the record stand at 3-5. After a wild and wooly first half, the Injuns went on to down Conemaugh Township 62-59 to get back on the winning track. With three more wins and four losses, the Braves' season was over, finishing in fifth place in the Tri-County League and ending with an 8-12 overall record for the season.

Mr. Lengel's grapplers copped another victory for Indiana with their 26-14 victory over the Bulldogs of Redbank Valley on January 21. The 133-pound bout provided the most excitement as Gene Nance was on the brink of defeat before he used a sit down and switch to earn a 4-3 decision over his Bulldog opponent. In the 145-pound class, Drew Nance handed Rich Willison his first defeat. Jim Cameron had built a 6-2 lead before his opponent suddenly got the advantage, and undefeated Ken LaBorde copped a 4-1 decision over Jerry Gleason. But despite these losses the Brave matmen enjoyed a 26-14 victory.

"Three" proved to be a lucky number for our wrestling team, as they copped the Hollidaysburg Mat Tourney on December 31 at Hollidaysburg. Harold Henry, Roger LoPresti, and Drew Nance led the way to victory, as they totaled 82 points, each winning his individual title. The entire team put forth their best efforts to capture this initial team victory in their four-year history in the tournament. Intramural leagues sparked a lot of winter sports action. The Boys' Intermediate Basketball under Mr. Sinclair contested for the championship spot over two months. Eight teams sought the first place position every Wednesday and Saturday evening in the gym. Playoffs were held on March 20. All-star players were elected at the end of the season. Based on the number of votes, eleven boys were chosen. Contrary to common belief, basketball is not confined to the male gender. Every Tuesday and Thursday evening from January 26 to March 16 the girls played fast and furious games. The league also elected an all-star team of thirteen girls. They went on to play against Elderton, the Junior High, and the I.S.C. freshmen girls' basketball teams. Earlier in the year volleyball teams also competed and during the spring season softball was played competitively.

Coach Davis's diamondmen could only boast of a half successful season this year. However their 50-50 record of seven wins and seven losses pleased some. Both games played with Marion Center and Laurel Valley were won by the braves. The team also won one out of the two games played against Nanty Glo, Kiski, and Altoona. The team was overwhelmed when they won their second game 9-5 against Altoona. Coach Davis has high hopes for next year as only four members are leaving—Tim McCoy, George Simpson, Bill Smith and Bill Johnson, its leading pitcher. Next year this experienced team will have outstanding players return to make up the powerful team.

Successful track season provides

Two new school records were set this year by the track team. First, Barry Warren broke the one mile run in a time of 4 minutes and 31.2 seconds. The mile relay team also broke a school record. This four man team consisted of Bob Mock, Dave Sokol, Bob Thomas and Dale Thompson. They also placed fifth in the state with a time of 3 minutes 29.1 seconds. The meet with Hempfield was discouraging for the team as they lost by 50 points. Their spirits were lifted, however, when they defeated Cambria Heights 128-21. In the triangular meet with Latrobe and Derry, Indiana placed third. In the Indiana Invitational, Indiana placed fourth. Competing in the meet against Johnstown, Ford City and Laura Lamar, Indiana placed third as in the triangular meet. In the Juniata Relay the team placed second; and in the meet against Purchase Line, Penns Manor, and Marion Center, Indiana came in first. Indiana was then defeated by Punxsutawney 90-60. With Fred Grove as winner of the low hurdles, Indiana placed fourth in the District Six meet.

Final exams, textbook collections, club picnics, and happy anticipations of that special day in June were all characteristic aspects of the last week of school. A few evenings were taken up by club picnics where members ate, played softball, and generally just had a good time.

The last day of school was, to many, the best. It was marked by the cleaning of books, the highlight of seeing them taken to the storage room, parties in the cafeteria, and farewells to teachers.

Teenage fads of straight hair, madras, and sandals became even more popular.

Last minute applications to college were made, and the Seniors said their final goodbyes on June 2. A week later another school year was finished, and a fun-filled summer began.
